MAYOR ROLPH TO SUPPORT BRIDGE ASS'N

Earnest support of the proposition of having a general highway bridge constructed across the southern arm of San Francisco bay at Dumbarton Point, was pledged by Mayor James Rolph Tuesday at a conference of the mayor with a committee of the Dumbarton State Highway Bridge Association.

The problems confronting the Association were laid before Mayor Rolph. When he learned of the fine headway made, he asserted that he was heartily in favor of the bridge being built, and assured the committee that the city would aid materially in promoting the project.

The chambers of commerce of San Francisco, South San Francisco, Palo Alto and Newark have, within the last few days, shown their interest in the proposed bridge by subscribing to the funds that are being raised to maintain headquarters of the Association at 747 Monadnock Building, San Francisco, and for prosecution of other work in connection with the bridge. Much success has been made in the drive for members in the Association at $12 per year, payable in full, or $1 per month. Many persons and corporations whose interest would be greatly benefitted by the building of the bridge are now sending in one or more memberships to the Association.

John L. Smith Claims Miss Ada Quartaroli as Bride

A pretty romance, which began three years ago, was ended Easter Monday, when John L. Smith claimed Miss Ada Quartaroli as his bride. The happy affair was a quiet church wedding with only a small number of relatives and intimate friends witnessing the ceremony, which was performed by Father Leal.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marion Quartaroli, as maid of honor. The groom was attended by Thomas Thrimble.

Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party gathered at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Quartaroli.

The happy young couple then left by automobile for a short wedding trip. They will make their home in Richmond, where Mr. Smith holds a responsible position with the Standard Oil Company.

They have the best wishes of their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Albergh attended a family reunion last Sunday at the home of Mr. Albergh's parents in Russel.

Royal Venetian Band Coming to Chautauqua

Band Which Delighted Thousands at Newport Beach to Tour West

THE Royal Venetian Band, conducted by Signor Joseph Lo Zito, famous Italian Director, gives two concerts on the fourth day of Chautauqua, one of the most liberal band contracts ever made.

Last summer the Royal Venetian Band played during the entire season at Newport Beach, R. I., one of the most exclusive pleasure resorts in the world. The Newport Beach Association says of Signor Joseph Lo Zito and the Royal Venetians: "They furnished the music at this Resort the past season to the unquestioned satisfaction of the Association and its patrons. Their concerts were attended by larger audiences than have patronized any band concerts heretofore given at this Beach by any organization."

Mary Adel Hays, American prima donna soprano of New York, has been specially engaged as soloist for the evening concerts. She has been described by "Musical America," the great musical authority, as "having a voice of beautiful quality, marked technical skill, excellent style and taste."

Fruit Growers to Hold Meeting at Centerville

That prosperous times are ahead for fruit growers, is the assertion of those who are working for the formation of the Apricot and Prune Growers Association.

A rousing meeting in behalf of the Association will be held at Town Hall, Centerville, Saturday, April 14, at 8 o'clock p. m., to which the fruit growers of the township are invited.

Speeches will be made by prominent American and Portuguese fruit growers, who will explain thoroughly the benefits growers will derive from the association.

To The Public

Having heard of several false accusations made against me by a representative of a certain musical concern, I feel that it is in justice to myself and the public to state that I am a graduate, and have also taken a post graduate course of two years and a half. I have my diploma which gives me the degree of Bachelor of Music, and entitles me to teach anywhere.

Before taking my own class, I taught in the Conservatory for two years, under the supervision of the Dean of the Conservatory, teaching from fifty to sixty pupils during the week's work.

I wish to make this statement for the benefit of those who have been so grossly misinformed.

FLORENCE L. NETTLETON.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher of Butler, Pennsylvania, parents of Mrs. Clarence Martenstein, have just recently arrived in Los Angeles on their way to Niles. They spent six months here last year and were so pleased with the country that they decided to return and make their home here.

After an enjoyable hour at the luncheon table, bridge was played until 4 o'clock p. m., highest scores being made by Mrs. Blanche Witherly and Miss Edna Tyson.

The Club will hold its next meeting, April 24, with Mrs. Clarence Martenstein as hostess.

Jack Teeters Meets Death by Drowning

The friend's of Jack Teeter's were grieved to learn of his tragic death last Monday night by drowning. He was employed as watchman over a section of the Spring Valley Water Company's pipe lines, and fell from the Dumbarton bridge into 60 feet of water.

It is not known how Teeter's lost his balance and fell, but it is supposed that he was blinded by the glare from the headlight of a train that passed over the bridge at 8:55, and in attempting to get to safety, made a mistep and plunged into the water.

His cries for help were answered by George Stonerod, tower watchman at the bridge, and the crew of a Southern Pacific boat, which was near the spot where he fell. A life preserver thrown out by W. A. Metcalfe, boat engineer, missed the drowning man by about six feet.

The body has not yet been found. The rifle which he carried was brought up at the spot where he went down.

Mr. Teeter's leaves a wife and four small children to mourn his loss.

Chief Vollmer Coming to Niles Sunday

Once more has the Men's League scored a point in securing a speaker of large reputation for Niles. Next Sunday evening at 7:45 at the First Congregational church there will be an address by August Vollmer, chief of police of Berkeley.

Chief Vollmer has an interesting story to tell and he knows how to tell it. His reputation as a constructive police officer is growing rapidly and his ability as a speaker is being recognized, as is shown by the large number of invitations he is forced to turn down. It is a compliment to our community that he has selected Niles as one of the places he is visiting.

There will be special violin music by Mrs. Havens of Centerville.

The entire community is urged to attend.

Irvington Items

The public schools are closed on account of measles.

The Easter services at the Christian church were attended by a very large number of people. The church was beautifully decorated and Rev. White preached a most instructive sermon.

The Irvington bowling team recently defeated the Market Street Stars of San Jose, by 310 pins. The Irvington team made 2432 points, and the Stars 2122 points. The Irvington team will journey to San Jose, Tuesday, April 17, for a return game.

"LAST LOAF" TO BE STAGED BY REBEKAHS

Considerable interest is being manifested in what promises to be a very interesting entertainment which will be given at Alvarado on April 21, for the benefit of Rebekah Lodge, No. 142.

The play which will be given, "The Last Loaf," is considered one of W. Baker's best productions. It was presented in the auditorium of the Newark school some time ago for the benefit of the Newark Fire Department, and was witnessed by a large audience.

The cast is composed of the best local talent obtainable, who play their parts in a creditable manner. They are the same people who took part in the first rendition of the play, with the exception of Miss Ruth Blair, who characterizes Mrs. Mark Ashton, the leading lady, and Miss D. Moore, who plays the part of the daughter.

Many who have already seen "The Last Loaf," have declared their intention of witnessing it again, which is sufficient proof that it possesses merit.

Ladies Guild Holds Interesting Meeting

The Ladies Guild held its regular meeting Wednesday, afternoon April 11, more than twenty ladies being present. Following the report of the secretary, Mrs. Ruthford, a report was received from Mrs. F. V. Jones, chairman of the committee gathering subscriptions for payment on the church debt, stating that the money pledged was within a few dollars of the amount required.

It was voted to hold the Garden Party, Saturday, May 5, at the home of Mrs. M. B. Sneden.

Mrs. Schofield told of the progress made in soliciting members for the Washington Township branch of the Oakland Red Cross Chapter.

The ladies spent the greater part of the afternoon doing fancy work, and before adjournment partook of coffee and sandwiches, served by Mrs. Edward Ellsworth and Mrs. John Dassel.

THE MEMBERS OF THE CONGREGATION FORGET THAT THE PARSONAGE FOLKS NEED MONEY FOR CHRISTMAS, SO LITTLE CONNIE TELLS BANKER SOME PLAIN TRUTHS

Mr. Starr, a widower Methodist minister, comes to Mount Mark, Ia., to take charge of the congregation there. He has five charming daughters, the eldest of whom, Prudence, age nineteen, keeps house and mothers the family. Her younger sisters are Fairy, the twins Carol and Lark, and Constance, the "baby." The family's coming stirs the curiosity of the townspeople. After a few weeks the Starrs are well settled. Prudence has her hands full with the mischievous youngsters, but she loves them devotedly despite their outrageous pranks. It is a joyous household, but the parsonage girls are embarrassed at Christmas time because the congregation has failed to pay the pastor's salary. Little Connie needs clothing, and sadly disappointed, takes matters into her own hands.

"Oh, I had her dressed warmly underneath, very warmly indeed," declared Prudence. "But no matter how warm you are underneath, you look cold if you aren't visibly prepared for winter weather. I kept hoping enough money would come in to buy her a coat for once in her life."

"She has been looking forward to one long enough," put in Fairy. "This will be a bitter blow to her. And yet it is not such a bad-looking coat, after all." And she quickly ran up a seam on the machine.

"Here comes Connie!" Prudence hastily swept a pile of scraps out of sight, and turned to greet her little sister with a cheery smile.

"Come on in, Connie," she cried, with a brightness she did not feel. "Fairy and I are making you a new coat. Isn't it pretty? And so warm! See the nice velvet collar and cuffs. We want to fit it on you right away, dear."

Connie picked up a piece of the goods and examined it intently.

"Don't you want some fudge, Connie?" exclaimed Fairy, shoving the dish toward her hurriedly.

Connie took a piece from the plate, and thrust it between her teeth. Her eyes were still fastened upon the brown velvet.

"Where did you get this stuff?" she asked, as soon as she was able to speak.

"Out of the trunk in the garret, Connie. Don't you want some more fudge? I put a lot of nuts in, especially on your account."

"It's good," said Connie, taking another piece. She examined the cloth very closely. "Say, Prudence, isn't that that old brown coat of father's?"

Fairy shoved her chair back from the machine, and ran to the window. "Look, Prue," she cried. "Isn't that Mrs. Adams coming this way? I wonder—"

"No, it isn't," answered Connie gravely. "It's just Miss Avery getting home from school. Isn't it, Prudence? Father's coat, I mean?"

"Yes, Connie, it is," said Prudence, very, very gently. "But no one here has seen it, and it is such nice cloth—just exactly what girls are wearing now."

"But I wanted a new coat!" Connie did not cry. She stood looking at Prudence with her wide hurt eyes.

"Oh, Connie, I'm just as sorry as you are," cried Prudence, with starting tears. "I know just how you feel about it! But the people didn't pay father up last month. Maybe after Christmas we can get you a coat. They pay up better then."

"I think I'd rather wear my summer coat until then," said Connie soberly.

"Oh, but you can't, dear. It is too cold. Won't you be a good girl now, and not make sister feel badly about it? It really is becoming to you, and it is nice and warm. Take some more fudge, dear, and run out-of-doors a while. You'll feel better about it presently, I'm sure."

Connie stood solemnly beside the table, her eyes still fastened on the coat, cut down from her father's. "Can I go and take a walk?" she asked finally.

"May I, you mean," suggested Fairy. "Yes, may I? Maybe I can reconcile myself to it."

"Yes, go and take a walk," urged Prudence promptly, eager to get the small sober face beyond her range of vision.

"If I am not back when the twins get home, go right on and eat without me. I'll come back when I get things straightened out in my mind."

When Connie was quite beyond hearing, Prudence dropped her head on the table and wept. "Oh, Fairy, if the members just knew how such things hurt, maybe they'd pay up a little better. How do they expect parsonage people to keep up appearances when they haven't any money?"

"Oh, now, Prue, you're worse than Connie! There's no use to cry about it. Parsonage people have to find happiness in spite of financial misery. Money isn't the first thing with folks like us."

"Poor little Connie! If she had cried about it, I wouldn't have cared so much. But she looked so—heart-sick, didn't she, Fairy?"

Connie certainly was heart-sick. More than that, she was a little disgusted. She felt herself aroused to take action. Things had gone too far! Go to church in her father's coat she could not! She walked sturdily down the street toward the "city"—ironically so called. Her face was stony, her hands were clenched. But finally she brightened. Her lagging steps quickened. She skipped along quite cheerfully. She turned westward as she reached the corner of the square, and walked along that business street with shining eyes. In front of the First National bank she paused, but after a few seconds she passed by. On the opposite corner was another bank. When she reached it, she walked in without pausing, and the massive door swung behind her.

The four older girls were at the table when Connie came home. She exhaled quiet satisfaction from every pore. Prudence glanced at her once, and then looked away again. "She has reconciled herself," she thought. Dinner was half over before Constance burst her bomb.

"Are you going to be busy this afternoon, Prudence?" she asked quietly.

"We are going to sew a little," said Prudence. "Why?"

"I wanted you to go downtown with me after school."

"Well, perhaps I can do that. Fairy will be able to finish the coat alone."

"You needn't finish the coat—I can't wear father's coat to church, Prudence. It's a—it's a—physical impossibility."

The twins laughed, Fairy smiled, but Prudence gazed at "the baby" with tender pity.

"I'm so sorry, dearest, but we haven't the money to buy one now."

"Will five dollars be enough?" inquired Connie, and she placed a crisp new bill beside her plate. The twins gasped! They gazed at Connie with new respect. They were just wishing they could handle five-dollar bills so recklessly.

"Will you loan me twenty dollars until after Christmas, Connie?" queried Fairy.

But Prudence asked, "Where did you get this money, Connie?"

"I borrowed it—from the bank," Connie replied with proper gravity. "I have two years to pay it back. Mr. Harold says they are proud to have my trade."

Prudence was silent for several long seconds. Then she inquired in a low voice, "Did you tell him why you wanted it?"

"Yes, I explained the whole situation."

"What did he say?"

"He said he knew just how I felt, because he knew he couldn't go to church in his wife's coat. No, I said that myself, but he agreed with me. He did not say very much, but he looked sympathetic. He said he anticipated great pleasure in seeing me in my new coat at church next Sunday."

"Go on with your luncheon, twins," said Prudence sternly. "You'll be late to school. We'll see about going downtown when you get home tonight, Connie. Now, eat your luncheon, and don't talk about coats any more."

When Connie had gone back to school, Prudence went straight to Mr. Harold's bank. Flushed and embarrassed, she explained the situation frankly. "My sympathies are all with Connie," she said candidly. "But I am afraid father would not like it. We are dead set against borrowing. After—our mother was taken, we were crowded pretty close for money. So we had to go in debt. It took us two years to get it paid. Father and Fairy and I talked it over then, and decided we would starve rather than borrow again. Even the twins understood it, but Connie was too little. She doesn't know how heartbreaking it is to keep hanging over every cent for debt, when one is just yearning for other things. I do wish she might have the coat, but I'm afraid father would not like it. We gave her the five dollars for safekeeping, and I have brought it back."

Mr. Harold shook his head. "No, Connie must have her coat. This will be a good lesson for her. It will teach her the bitterness of living under debt! Besides, Prudence, I think in my heart that she is right this time. This is a case where borrowing is justified. Get her the coat, and I'll square the account with your father." Then he added, "And I'll look after this salary business after this. I'll arrange with the trustees that I am to pay your father his full salary the first of every month, and that the church receipts are to be turned in to me. And if they do not pay up, my lawyer can do a little investigating! Little Connie earned that five dollars, for she taught one trustee a sorry lesson. And he will have to pass it on to the others in self-defense! Now, run along and get the coat, and if five dollars isn't enough you can have as much more as you need. Your father will get his salary after this, my dear, if we have to mortgage the parsonage!"

CHAPTER VII.

A Burglar's Visit.

"Prue!" A small hand gripped Prudence's shoulder, and again came a hoarsely whispered:

"Prue!" Prudence sat up in bed with a bounce.

"What in the world?" she began, gazing out into the room, half-lighted by the moonshine, and seeing Carol and Lark shivering beside her bed.

"Sh! Sh! Hush!" whispered Lark. "There's a burglar in our room!"

By this time, even sound-sleeping Fairy was awake. "Oh, there is!" she scoffed.

"Yes, there is," declared Carol with some heat. "We heard him, plain as day. He stepped into the closet, didn't he, Lark?"

"He certainly did," agreed Lark.

"Did you see him?"

"No, we heard him. Carol heard him first, and she spoke, and nudged me. Then I heard him, too. He was at our dresser, but he shot across the room and into the closet. He closed the door after him. He's there now."

"You've been dreaming," said Fairy, lying down again.

"We don't generally dream the same thing at the same minute," said Carol stormily. "I tell you he's in there."

"And you two great big girls came off and left poor little Connie in there alone with a burglar, did you? Well, you are nice ones, I must say."

Prudence Dropped Her Head on the Table and Wept.

And Prudence leaped out of bed and started for the door, followed by Fairy, with the twins creeping fearfully along in the rear.

"She was asleep," muttered Carol. "We didn't want to scare her," added Lark.

Prudence was careful to turn the switch by the door, so that the room was in full light before she entered. The closet door was wide open. Connie was soundly sleeping. There was no one else in the room.

"You see?" said Prudence sternly. "I'll bet he took our ruby rings," declared Lark, and the twins and Fairy ran to the dresser to look.

But a sickening realization had come home to Prudence. In the lower hall, under the staircase, was a small dark closet which they called the dungeon. The dungeon door was big and solid, and was equipped with a heavy catch-lock. In this dungeon, Prudence kept the family silverware, and all the money she had on hand, as it could there be safely locked away. But more often than not, Prudence forgot to lock it.

Have you ever awakened to find a burglar in your room? What did you do—pretend sleep? Or shout? Or keep still at his command?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Urgent.

Just as the Christmas dinner was on the table, and the family had gathered about it, big sister stepped into the hall to look at her hair in the mirror there.

Helen was hungry, and everything did look and smell so good, and yet she knew well that father would not say grace until big sister was also in her seat.

"Hurry up, Ruth," she called. "God's waiting."

The Spur

At the ring of the doorbell, Doris jumped up, dropping her magazine to the table. She could distinguish Philip Somers' pressure upon the push-button bell from that of anyone else who had occasion to call at the Hanson home. Hurrying through the front hallway, she patted the sides, front, and top of her neatly coiled coiffure, and she smoothed an imaginary wrinkle from her new dress. She was near the door when she slowed her steps and sought to dull the light of joyous expectancy in her eyes. When she swung open the door, she had assumed the outward appearance of perfect composure.

"Good evening, Phil!" she greeted. "Good evening, Doris!" responded the tall, lithe young man with sandy hair, who stepped into the hall.

After his topcoat and soft felt hat had been placed upon the hat tree, they proceeded into the parlor. He seated himself in the heavily built, upholstered rocker, she dropping down upon an end of the divan.

"By jingo, but it seems good to sit down and take it easy for awhile!" he exclaimed. "I've put in a mighty busy day; not without results, though. I secured the largest order for loose-leaf and manifold books today that my firm has received during the past six months."

Doris sighed inaudibly. As usual, Phil was discussing his work as city salesman for the Farnes company. Not but what she liked to hear of his business successes, and of his business tribulations, for that matter, and to sympathize with him when he confided the latter to her; but there were other subjects—subjects vitally interesting to her—on which she longed for him to speak. She had decided definitely that she preferred him above all others who sought her. Moreover, she was certain that Phil reciprocated her feeling; for, though he persisted in talking of business and prosaic matters while at her home or in her company at the theaters and other places of entertainment, she had seen his eyes express things that his tongue could seemingly not articulate. She raised her shapely hand to an arm of the divan and permitted it to rest there where he could look upon it.

"Farnes was as pleased as a youngster with a new train of cars," he was saying. "He—" He broke off abruptly and gazed toward her hand, resting upon the arm of the divan. "Why—what—" he hesitated, his eyes intent upon the delicate gold band, set with a modest, but dazzling white stone, which graced her third finger. "Why—Doris, what—"

"Aren't you going to give me your best wishes?" she asked smilingly. She moved the ring-finger causing the stone to sparkle splendidly.

He sat there, rigid and speechless for a moment. Then his hands clinched spasmodically and an angry glint came into his eyes—a glint mingling surprise, frustration, and anger. His jaw squared truculently. "Is—is it Webber—Ellis Webber?" he demanded hoarsely.

She forced the flicker of a frown upon her forehead. "Why, Phil?" she pouted; "I presumed that you at least thought enough of me to wish me well. I never expected you to act like this."

Sliding to the very edge of the great rocker and leaning forward, he grasped the hand upon which she wore the ring. He retained the small hand within his large one, despite her slight struggle to draw it away.

"Do you love him, Doris?" he asked, his voice throbbing.

"I—I—why, the very idea of asking me such a—" This time it was she who hesitated.

In an instant he was seated beside her on the divan, his arm about her and with his face close to hers.

"You don't love him! You don't—you can't—you mustn't!" he exclaimed, pressing her tightly to him. "I love you, Doris! You don't know how much I love you, girl! I'll do anything—anything for you, girl, except give you up. Webber can't love you as I do! Why, only today I saw him dining with—" His teeth clinched as he broke off. "Tell me, Doris; don't you love me?" he pleaded in gentler tone. "Let me remove that ring from your finger? I'll bring you one tomorrow night to replace it. Let me, please, girl?"

Suddenly she relaxed, tipping back her head until she looked straight up into his face. His lips pressed warmly down upon hers. Hers answered the pressure acquiescently, lovingly, while he drew the ring from her finger and dropped it into her lap. After Philip Somers had departed homeward, Doris went into the library and took a tiny box out of the table drawer. On it was stamped in diminutive letters: "Ward's Department store," while equally exiguous printed matter, beneath the department store stamp, read:

Sparklo.

The most perfect imitation of the diamond."

Doris turned the little box over. On the bottom of it was scribbled in pencil "25 cents." She removed its cover and dropped into it the ring that Phil had removed from her finger. Hardwood embers were glowing in the open fireplace, toward which she moved. Raising the little box to her lips, she kissed it.

"Good-by, little ring," she murmured. "You served your purpose well."

Then she tossed it into the fireplace among the embers, and, with the most wonderful expression upon her face that is within woman's power to radiate, watched it burn.

Let Clocks Alone.

We wish persons would cease making us and others impatient about small things. With a shortage of the tobacco crop and a threatened baseball strike we have quite enough to occupy our minds without bothering about this nonsense called the "daylight saving plan." Some European put the clocks ahead an hour over there and now a few in this country ask that the same thing be done. It will get people out of bed earlier and let them work in the cool of the morning, say these folks. What difference does it make what time it is if one is ready to get out of bed? The day begins with the rise of the sun, and all foolish persons can get up at that time by setting alarm clocks after consulting almanacs. But there are many persons who find a morning sleep good for them; wherefore, they prefer to lie abed, and putting clocks an hour ahead would not help. The sun fixes the time, anyway, and when it is six o'clock no man on earth can make it seven by merely saying it is. Neither can clocks and watches. Let well enough alone.—New York Telegraph.

Jobs for Blind Soldiers.

It is an established fact that the blind far excel in acuteness of hearing and sensitiveness of touch their fellow men who have unimpaired sight. The French, with their usual forethought, have taken this into consideration in planning for occupations for French soldiers after the war. French scientists, after careful investigation, have decided that the blind soldiers will make the best wireless operators.

In opening these positions to her blind soldiers France will not be performing any charity in the common use of that term. She will simply be fitting the best man to his job, and giving the men who fought for her their deserved opportunity. The benefit derived will be for the public as well as the individual.

HE'D BEEN MARRIED TWICE

She—Marriage is a lottery. He—And most men draw a blank.

Barnyard Melodies.

"Well, sir, that was a new one on me," said Cousin Reuben, on his last visit to our no mean city.

"How was that?" cried Mr. Suburbanite, and the rest of his family.

"I've heard of young folks leavin' the farm for the city, but city folks never seem to care for us sons of the soil. Well, I paid $3 for a seat at your opera house. The actin' was fairly good, but the music was what I was after. At last the band struck up a piece that sounded real good. I thought it would be named 'Dying Gladiator's Wail,' or something like that, but I looked down on my printed program and it said: 'Pullet and Pheasant Overture.'"—Indianapolis News.

Use for Kangaroo Skins.

The latest government statistics show that there were 1,072,494 pounds of kangaroo skins imported during the eleven months ending May 31, 1916, as compared with 672,339 pounds last year and 1,225,679 pounds two years ago for the same period. The imports last year were valued at $633,301, or an average of about 59 cents a pound. There are less of these skins received than of any other variety used in making shoe leather, but genuine kangaroo skins make excellent leather and large quantities would be tanned if the skins were available.

An Instance.

"Did you ever hear of such a thing as an appropriate affliction?" "Why, yes. There's the case of a grass widow with hay fever."

City's Heart

There are few corners of the earth where the wonders of the world's capital are not known—the city which spreads its vast bulk over nearly 700 square miles, an area three times as large as the county of Middlesex, and which counts its citizens approximately to twice as many millions as there are in the whole continent of Australia. Its palatial buildings, its stately streets through which its rich tide of traffic rolls, its wealth and splendor, and its treasures of long dead centuries are an open book to the world.

"Could we imagine," Charles Knight writes in his "London," "that this great capital of capitals should ever be what Babylon is—its very site forgotten—one could not but almost envy the delight with which the antiquaries of future time would hear of some discovery of a London below the soil still remaining."

"We can fancy we see the progress of the excavations from one part to another of the mighty, but for a while inexplicable labyrinth, till the whole was cleared open to the daylight and the vast system laid bare before them, revealing in the clearest language the magnitude and splendor of the place to which it had belonged, the skill and enterprise of its people."

Where Millions Travel.

But without any such laborious process of excavation the antiquaries of the remote future could easily explore most of the marvels of this buried London, remarks a writer in London Tit-Bits. They could walk for scores of miles along subterranean streets, over which London's traffic once surged—streets well paved and drained and spacious, each a counterpart of the thoroughfare above it and labeled with the same name. They will be able to say, "Just over our heads ran historic Cheapside, or St. Bride street, or Ludgate Hill, in the long gone centuries when London was the world's metropolis."

They can spend weeks exploring its marvels of underground railways and tubes, through which London's teeming millions traveled on business or pleasure in the nebulous age when flight through the air was still in its cradle.

Network of Waterways.

They can spend further weeks in exploring London's vast network of channels and waterways, measuring in all more than 2,000 miles—some of them vaulted passages 10 or 12 feet high, others so small that progress can only be made by stooping; and in their journey they will encounter waterfalls, and wade along historic streams more than one of which in long gone centuries carried ships on their deep waters. In other journeys they may see subterranean vaults, nearly 30 miles of them, in which London merchants once kept their wine in casks; and baths, once fed by holy wells, in which the Roman emperor Vespasian may have bathed nearly 19 centuries ago.

Such are a few of the marvels which the earth will reveal to the curious searcher thousands of years hence, if London ever shares the fate of Babylon—a city beneath a city, a duplicate of the one above it—an almost endless maze of subterranean passages and tunnels thousands of miles in aggregate length, descending, one below another, to a depth of about 200 feet.

Vast Underground Lake.

And deeper still lies another marvel which the eye of man may never see; for, extending under the whole of London and far beyond it is a vast underground lake, which stretches as far as Westerham on one side and St. Albans on the other. The whole of London, in fact, is built over water, which is sinking at the rate of a foot or more every year; for it is tapped by means of artesian wells to the extent of 10,000,000 gallons daily.

Happily there is no danger of any subsidence occurring through the exhaustion of the water, as its presence or absence has no effect whatever on the stout barrier of chalk, flint, gray sand and clay which separates the subterranean lake from the city which has been built over it.

Simple Operation.

"Is there really such a thing as thought transference?" "Oh, yes," replied the literary person.

"Could you give me a convincing demonstration?" "Certainly. Drop in to see me some time and I will sit at my typewriter and show you how I transfer a thought from my mind to a sheet of paper."

How It Happens.

"If the average American could only shoot as well as he talks, this country would always be in a state of preparedness."

"Maybe so, but you can hardly blame the average citizen for being a better speaker than he is a marksman. Guns and ammunition are expensive, while talk is the cheapest commodity on earth."

Profit in High Wages.

Wherever rubber grows, there inquiry flourishes. Tropical fruits are made cheap because human life where they grow is cheap. The spirit of humanity is just beginning to creep into the relations between those who have much and those who have little. But a rare discovery has been made. Strange as it may seem, it has been proved by experiment that it pays to be reckless of expense when service is sought and rendered. That which has come to pass in the higher ranges of employment, where salaries have been increased tenfold and even more, is happening all along the line where labor and capital meet. Five dollars paid in wages to one competent man brings a larger return than $5 paid to five incompetent men and women; and the larger wage brings the greater fitness for the work. Better wages stir ambition and cause the horizon to expand.—Christian Register.

"One by One"

Little Mollie was seated at the tea table with a plate of cakes opposite her. She was waiting impatiently for the meal to commence, and ventured to touch one of the cakes with her forefinger.

"You must eat that cake now, Mollie!" said her mother, severely. "No body will want it after you have touched it!"

Mollie took the cake and placed it on her plate. A few minutes later she said, plaintively:

"Oh, mummy, I've touched another one!"

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA has decided that Pioneer Scouts shall be allowed to take merit badge tests in the same way as Scouts who are members of troops.

When a Pioneer Scout has prepared himself for a merit badge test, by studying the Handbook and securing as much help as possible from experts in his neighborhood, he will secure an application blank from the National Court of Honor and apply for the registration of an Examining Committee. He will also ask headquarters for Merit Badge application blanks. The committee will have, for its chairman, the superintendent of schools, a school principal or some other school official, and the other two members will be men who are competent to judge whether the Scout is qualified to receive the badge or not. The Scout will secure the chairman and the chairman will appoint the other members.

The Scout will be examined by an expert in the subject—some man whose testimony will be accepted by the examining committee. The expert will fill out his part of the Merit Badge application blank. Then the Scout will appear at a meeting of the Examining Committee and answer such questions as they may ask. If satisfied that the Scout has met the requirements, the Examining Committee will endorse the application and send it to the National Court of Honor.

"ON THE SERVICE OF YOUR COUNTRY"

Boy Scouts have been hiking, camping, working, playing, so that they would have strong bodies, skilled hands, keen minds and courageous spirits when they were needed by the nation. With many it has been play—but play with a purpose.

Now the time has come to use that training. The nation needs every boy right now.

We must have a larger food supply—nothing must be left undone to avoid a famine in case of war. Have a garden, the biggest and best you can make. It may be only a window box full of lettuce and radishes, but a million boxes like that would mean at least two million pounds of wholesome food.

Watch for fires. Reduce fire risks by cleaning the rubbish out of cellars and corners. Be sure you know exactly what to do in case of fire.

Let your town or city officials know that you are ready for service in your community. Tell them what you can do and ask them what they would like to have you learn to do.

Think! These are only a few of many things that you might do. You know your own town. What does it need? How can you help?

BOY SCOUTS HELP AT PRESIDENT'S INAUGURATION

Five thousand Scouts assisted at the inauguration of President Wilson in Washington on March 5. Many of them—those who came from other cities—did extra work and saved their money for weeks in order to make the trip.

A thousand surrounded the reviewing stand. Other thousands lined the route of the parade. Many were trampled by the surging crowds, but they stuck to the job—too busy even to stop for lunch.

Three hundred first aid cases were handled. When there was no more important work to do, the Scouts busied themselves by chasing hats which the wind blew off.

The greatest heroes of all were those who volunteered for service which kept them from seeing the parade.

OUR FLAG AND OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM

All Scouts fly our national flag, but many of them, like many untrained adults, do not lower it at sunset. It is considered a mark of disrespect to allow the flag to fly throughout the night.

Flags hung against a wall should be straight or flat, not draped, and the union, or star field, should be in the upper left-hand corner to the observer if the stripes are horizontal, or in the upper right-hand corner if the stripes are perpendicular.

The hymn "The Star Spangled Banner" is the national anthem; not by act of Congress, but by the recognition given it by the army and navy. Whenever it is played listeners should stand. Rise always for "The Star Spangled Banner."

WOMAN SICK TWO YEARS

Could Do No Work. Now Strong as a Man.

Chicago, Ill.—"For about two years I suffered from a female trouble so I was unable to walk or do any of my own work. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and determined to try it. It brought almost immediate relief. My weakness has entirely disappeared and I never had better health. I weigh 165 pounds and am as strong as a man. I think money is well spent which purchases Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Jos. O'Bryan, 1755 Newport Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

CALOMEL SELDOM SOLD HERE NOW

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, sour stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.—Adv.

SUCCESS OF A NEW REMEDY FOR BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM, KIDNEYS.

Folks here in town and in adjoining counties are delighted with the results they have obtained by using "AN-URIC," the newest discovery of Dr. Pierce, who is head of the INVALIDS' HOTEL and STRONG INSTITUTION, in Buffalo, N. Y. Those who started the day with a backache, stiff legs, arms and muscles, and an aching head (worn out before the day began because they were in and out of bed half a dozen times at night) are appreciating the perfect rest, comfort and new strength they obtained from Doctor Pierce's An-uric Tablets. To prove that this is a certain uric acid solvent and conquers headache, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism, if you've never used the "An-uric," cut this out and send 10 cents to Doctor Pierce for a large sample package. This will prove to you that "An-uric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid—the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector. If you are a sufferer, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50-cent box of "An-uric."

CUSTOMS IN WEST INDIES

Theodore Roosevelt Writes Entertainingly of Life "Where the Steady Trade-Winds Blow."

When the ship was coaled the workers were sometimes men, sometimes strapping women as strong as the men, who chattered and sang as they toiled, while their white teeth flashed in their dark faces. Queer fishing craft, sometimes with russet sails, danced over the foaming combers which broke the azure of the deep. Rows of tall, slender-stemmed palms stood back of the shining beaches, their fronded tops thrashing endlessly in the trade-wind.

On the edge of the blue ocean, at the foot of brilliant green mountains, half hidden in the tropic vegetation, stood little towns, clusters of low white or red houses. After nightfall the town gallants sat at small tables on the sidewalks outside the taverns or under the trees in the open squares. Powerful, finely built black women and lithe, comely brown women strode along the paths and highroads, erect and supple, all their burdens, great or small, poised on their heads. Sometimes these burdens were extraordinary because of their bulk or weight, at other times they were comic because it seemed incredible that such small or peculiar objects should not be carried in the hand: once, for instance, we saw a woman carrying on her head a solitary white shoe, and another time, of all things, a single egg.

In all the islands legal and political discriminations based on color have been done away. In some the social discriminations are giving way. In others sharp social lines are drawn not only between white and colored—as all shades of cross-blood are called—but between colored and black. The whites everywhere composed most of the upper class, although it also included many of the colored; the colored folk made up most of the middle class, and just as they extended into the class above them so their class was entered by the blacks below them; and the bulk of the laborers, in the towns and especially in the country, were blacks, although many were browns.—From "Where the Steady Trade-Winds Blow," by Theodore Roosevelt, in the February Scribner.

Brazil Corn Exposition.

The first national exposition of corn in Brazil was held recently in Sao Paulo. It was modeled on those which have met with such success in the United States. It was held under the patronage of the state minister of agriculture. The exposition was visited by prominent planters from many states, who took advantage of the occasion to supply themselves with high-grade seed for the coming crops. It is the intention of the organizers to form "corn clubs" throughout the country, to be conducted in the same manner as in the United States.

Laugh When People Step On Your Feet

Try this yourself then pass it along to others. It works!

Ouch ! ! ! ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezone tell him to order a small bottle for you.—Adv.

How Efficiency Works.

The manager of a large eastern factory has been quoted as saying:

"The benefits from scientific management derived by our employees in the making of paper and paper boxes—and we have been working under it only two and one-half years—are: Average increase in wages, 15 per cent; reduction in working hours, 10 per cent; a feeling of greater confidence in that the tasks set by means of a scientific study of the work are known by the employee to be accurate.

"A recent test on machines producing 85 per cent of our boxes shows the difference between the time allowed for two thousand hours of work and the time actually taken was less than three-fourths of an hour.

"It has been said by opponents that individuality is lessened or taken away. Our experience has been exactly the reverse."

Save your Hair! Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful seurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverish itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

England's Mysterious Ditches. The discovery of a "covered way" across Willington hill, near Easthorpe, has recently been made by H. S. Toms of Brighton. A "covered way" consists of a ditch with a bank on either side which runs across exposed brows of the downs, generally connecting the head of one valley with that on the other side of the hill.

It is thought that these "ways" were used in ancient times to enable persons to cross over the downland ridges without being seen. They were formerly taken to be defensive lines, but against this theory is the fact that the ditch is banked on both sides. It has been proved that the "covered ways" of the South Downs are decidedly older than the Roman occupation.—London Times.

Government Land Opening April 25th

The opening to settlement of approximately 2500 acres of Tule Lake bottom lands under the Klamath Irrigation Project, US Reclamation Service, will take place April 25th. Intending settlers must make water right applications at office of Reclamation Project Engineer at Klamath Falls. Applications for entry can be filed in person or by mail commencing April 16th and continuing up to time of opening at US Land Offices at Lakeview, Oregon, for Oregon lands, and Sacramento, Cal., for California lands. Conflicting applications will be decided by drawing.

According to advice received from Klamath Falls Commercial Club, automobile service from Klamath Falls, Oregon, to enable prospective entrymen to inspect the land will be provided as follows:

Auto service drivers have made a rate of 7 cents per mile for use of automobile to visit Tule Lake lands. Distance to Tule Lake and return is about 60 miles, making cost of trip $4.20 per head for round trip. No trip will be made at this rate for less than three passengers.

Single passengers making the trip will be charged 20 cents per mile. A stay of two hours will be allowed to visit the lands. If extra time above 60 is made on any trip, rate will be 7 cents per mile.

The land may be visited any time between April 16th and 25th, inclusive.

Homestead entries for the farm units shown on plates on file in the local Reclamation office may be made at the local land office of the district within which said land is situated. Every person desiring to acquire any of said public lands must execute a homestead application subject to the provisions of the reclamation law in manner required by law, which, with the required fees and commissions, accompanied by certificate of the project manager as to the filing of waterright application and payment of water right charges as hereinafter provided may be presented to said local land office, in person, by mail, or otherwise, within a period of five days prior to the opening, to wit: April 25th, 1917. Applications presented after said period of five days will be filed and noted in the order of their receipt.

Kill Flies and Save Lives

Kill at once every fly you can find and burn its body.

Observers say that there are many reasons to believe there will be more flies this season than for a number of years.

The killing of just one fly now means there will be billions and trillions less next summer.

Clean up your own premises; see and insist that your neighbors do likewise.

Especially clean "out-of-the-way-places," and every nook and cranny.

Flies will not go where there is nothing to eat, and their principal diet is too filthy to mention.

Remedies For Colds

Wash a lemon, leave it whole, with the peel on, and bake like an apple until the pulp is thoroughly cooked; then cut through and scrape out the pulp and juice, rejecting skin and seeds. Sweeten with sugar, or preferably honey, and take when necessary to soothe the irritated membranes. This is an old fashioned cough mixture, but is still useful, and it may often be taken by persons whose digestions are upset by other cough remedies. Another of the old time cough remedies is flaxseed tea, sweetened and flavored with lemon and licorice. Enough flaxseed is boiled in water to make the mixture mucilaginous. It is then strained and flavored while hot with sugar, lemon and licorice. If stick licorice was used it was boiled with the flaxseed.

Freckle Removers

Commercial preparations for removing freckles are often injurious to the skin. The following remedies are harmless:

Grate a fresh horseradish root very fine. Cover it with fresh buttermilk. Let stand overnight. Strain through cheesecloth. Wash the face night and morning with this liquid.

Squeeze the juice of a lemon into a glass. With a small brush touch the freckle with the lemon juice several times daily.

Mock Pin Tucks.

For use on children's clothes, lingerie or fine blouses a good imitation of pin tucking may be obtained by machine stitching. It is necessary to use about a No. 8 thread in the bobbin and as fine a thread as 100 in the needle. Stitch the material on the wrong side, letting the coarse thread come on the right. It is this coarse thread which looks like the pin tuck, and it is ever so much easier to do. It might be a good idea to loosen the bobbin screw very slightly in doing this work.

How Madison Girl Won Ribbons in Both Black and White Classes.

Madison Girl, when purchased by her owner, C. E. Rich, in 1913, was jet black with the green sheen called for in Single Comb Black Minorcas. That year at various shows she captured seven blue ribbons, the most notable win being that of fourth pullet at the Madison Square Garden exhibition, New York. The following year she captured seven second prizes at various shows, all in the Single Comb Black Minorca class.

In 1915, however, during the molting period, she began to turn white. She molted three consecutive periods, becoming whiter each time, until in January, 1916, she became snow white—shanks, toe nails and beak. In September she was awarded second hen ribbon at New York state fair and later first hen prize at Brockton, Mass. Then she was sent to the winter show at Madison Square Garden, where she was awarded third hen prize. These last three awards were made in the Single Comb White Minorca class. There is no record of a bird winning in one color as a pullet and then returning in three years or any time and winning in the same showroom in the opposite color as a hen. To recapitulate, in 1913 she was awarded fourth pullet in the Single Comb Black Minorca class at Madison Square Garden, and in 1916 she was awarded third hen in the Single Comb White Minorca class at the same place, an unprecedented record.

To Keep Liquids.

Grape juice, ginger ale, fruit juice or any kind of liquid of like nature may be kept for any period if laid upon its side or placed bottom up. Thus if the liquid covers the cork, the moisture will keep the cork expanded and there will be no room for the air to find its way in and ruin it.

To remove stains from earthenware dishes and plates caused by putting them in the oven, soak in strong borax and hot water.

To ship a mirror without breaking the glass, paste narrow strips of paper diagonally across the glass. This breaks the vibration and prevents the damage that often results.

When weighing molasses for cooking purposes, flour the scale well and the molasses will run off quite easily.

Hon. George A. Carlson

Colorado Statesman and Reformer Who Will Be Heard at Chautauqua

THE state of Colorado some time ago elected a young man governor at the age of thirty-eight. It did it deliberately, with purpose aforethought, for that young man had demonstrated that he was an able statesman, a constructive thinker, a fighter and a reformer, as courageous as he was practical. That man was George A. Carlson. His administration of the governor's office was marked by unusual ability and real democracy, and he comes now to Ellison-White Chautauquas with a burning message for all true Americans, "The Price of Progress."

"We Are at War With Germany"

This Message Was Flashed to All U. S. Army and Navy Stations

Washington.—The United States has accepted Germany's challenge to war and formally abandoned its place as the greatest neutral of a world in arms.

President Wilson at 1:18 (official time) o'clock Friday afternoon, April 6, signed the resolution of Congress declaring the existence of a state of war and authorizing and directing the Chief Executive to employ all the resources of the Nation to prosecute hostilities against the German Government to a successful termination.

The act was done without ceremony and only in the presence of members of the President's family. Word was flashed immediately to all Army and Navy stations and to vessels at sea and orders for further precautionary steps were dispatched.

By proclamation the President announced the state of war, called upon all citizens to manifest their loyalty, and assured Germans in this country that they would be unmolested as long as they behaved themselves. Orders were issued soon afterward for the arrest of sixty ringleaders in German plots and intrigues.

President Wilson's War Proclamation

"Whereas, The Congress of the United States in the exercise of the constitutional authority vested in them have resolved by joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives bearing date this day 'that a state of war between the United States and the Imperial German Government which has been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared'; and the President makes public proclamation of the Revised Statutes as follows:

"Whenever there is declared a war between the United States and any foreign nation or government or any invasion or predatory incursion perpetrated, attempted or threatened against the territory of the United States, by any foreign nation or government, and the President makes public proclamation of the event, all natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of a hostile nation or government being made of the age of 14 years and upward who shall be within the United States and not actually naturalized, shall be liable to be apprehended, restrained, secured and removed as alien enemies."

"The President is authorized in any such event by his proclamation thereof or other public acts, to direct the conduct to be observed on the part of the United States toward the aliens who become so liable, in the manner and degree of the restraint to which they shall be subject and in what cases and upon what security their residence shall be permitted and to provide for the removal of those who, not being permitted to reside within the United States, refuse or neglect to depart therefrom, and to establish any such regulations as shall be found necessary in the premises and for the public safety;

"Whereas, By sections 4068, 4069 and 4070 of the Revised Statutes further provision is made relative to alien enemies;

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim, to all whom it may concern, that a state of war exists between the United States and the Imperial German Government, and I do specially direct all officers, civil or military, of the United States, that they exercise vigilance and zeal in the discharge of the duties incident to such a state of war, and I do, moreover, earnestly appeal to all American citizens that they, in loyal devotion to their country, dedicated from its foundation to the principles of liberty and justice, uphold the laws of the land and give undivided and willing support to those measures which may be adopted by the constitutional authorities in prosecuting the war to a successful issue and in obtaining a secure and just peace;

"And, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution of the United States and the said sections of the Revised Statutes, I do hereby further proclaim and direct that the conduct to be observed on the part of the United States toward all natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of Germany, being male, of the age of 14 years and upward, who shall be within the United States and not actually naturalized, who, for the purpose of this proclamation and under such sections of the Revised Statutes, are termed alien enemies, shall be as follows:

"All alien enemies are enjoined to preserve the peace toward the United States and to refrain from crime against the public safety and from violating the laws of the United States and of the states and territories thereof and to refrain from actual hostility or giving information, aid or comfort to the enemies of the United States and to comply strictly with the regulations which are hereby or which may be from time to time promulgated by the President, and so long as they shall conduct themselves in accordance with law they shall be undisturbed in the peaceful pursuit of their lives and occupations and be accorded the consideration due to all peaceful and law-abiding persons, except so far as restrictions may be necessary for their own protection and for the safety of the United States; and toward such alien enemies as conduct themselves in accordance with law, all citizens of the United States are enjoined to preserve the peace and to treat them with all such friendliness as may be compatible with loyalty and allegiance to the United States."

"And all alien enemies who fail to conduct themselves as so enjoined, in addition to all other penalties prescribed by law, shall be liable to restraint or to give security or to remove and depart from the United States in the manner prescribed by sections 4069 and 4070 of the Revised Statutes and as prescribed in the regulations duly promulgated by the President."

"And, pursuant to the authority vested in me, I hereby declare and establish the following regulations, which I find necessary in the premises and for the public safety:

"FIRST.—An alien enemy shall not have in his possession at any time or place any firearms, weapons or implements of war, or any munitions of war, or any material used in the manufacture of explosives; and no alien enemy shall not have in his possession at any time or place or use or operate any aircraft or wireless apparatus or any form of signaling device or any form of cipher code or any paper, document or book, written or printed in cipher or in which there may be invisible writing."

"THIRD.—All property found in the possession of an alien enemy in violation of the foregoing regulations shall be subject to seizure by the United States;

"FOURTH.—An alien enemy shall not approach or be found within one-half of a mile of any Federal or State fort, camp, arsenal, aircraft station, government or naval vessel, navy yard, factory or work shop for the manufacture of munitions of war or any products for the use of the United States;

"FIFTH.—An alien enemy shall not write, print or publish any attack or threat against the Government or Congress of the United States, or either branch thereof, or against the measures or policy of the United States or against the persons or property of any person in the military, naval or civil service of the United States or of the states or territories or of the District of Columbia or of the municipal governments therein;

"SIXTH.—An alien enemy shall not commit or abet any hostile acts against the United States or give information, aid or comfort to its enemies;

"SEVENTH.—An alien enemy shall not reside in or continue to reside in, to remain in or enter any locality which the President may from time to time designate by an executive order as a prohibitive area in which residence by an alien enemy shall be found by him to constitute a danger to the public peace and safety of the United States except by permit from the President and except under such limitations or restrictions as the President may prescribe;

"EIGHTH.—An alien enemy whom the President shall have reasonable cause to believe to be aiding or about to aid the enemy or to be at large to the danger of the public peace or safety of the United States or to have violated or be about to violate any of these regulations, shall remove to any local detention station designated by the President by executive order and shall not remove therefrom, without permit, or shall depart from the United States if so required by the President;

"NINTH.—No alien enemy shall depart from the United States until he shall have received such permit as the President shall prescribe, or except under order of court, judge or justice, under sections 4069 and 4070 of the Revised Statutes;

"TENTH.—No alien enemy shall land in or enter the United States except under such restrictions and at such places as the President may prescribe;

"ELEVENTH.—If necessary to prevent violation of the regulations all alien enemies will be obliged to register;

2 SPY SUSPECTS SHOT
BY TRENTON MILITIA

Trenton, N. J.—Two men, said to be acting suspiciously, were shot and wounded here early April 6 by National Guardsmen on duty at the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel under the Delaware and Raritan canal, an approach to the Delaware river bridge of the railroad company.

The men shot were Frank McGrath, 35 years old, and Frank Henry, 25, both of this city. Neither was seriously hurt, according to physicians.

Redding.—Robert W. Shaw, a pioneer miner of the old town of Shasta, was sentenced April 7 to San Quentin for ten years. He was convicted of shooting T. L. Cockrum in the face and putting out both eyes. Shaw is more than 70 years old. Judge Estep, in passing sentence, said that but for the recommendation for clemency by the jury he would have given Shaw the limit of fourteen years.

Sacramento.—Notices were posted in all the departments of the State Printing Office April 7 by Superintendent Robert L. Telfer notifying the employees that in the event of their enlistment their positions would be guaranteed. Several hundred men are employed in the printing and bindery departments alone.

SENATOR ASKS CONGRESS FOR PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Washington.—Bills for the California Federal buildings, with a total appropriation of $1,950,000, were introduced by Senator Phelan April 6. These are:

Oakland$1,000,000
Marysville 100,000
San Mateo 100,000
San Jose 350,000
Vallejo 100,000
Richmond 100,000
Palo Alto 100,000
Placerville 50,000
Sacramento 50,000

Stockton.—No motive has been discovered for the murder of James A. P. Hanlon, whose murdered body was found Wednesday, April 4, in his automobile in a secluded spot near this city, to which he had evidently been lured. Whether he was the victim of a robber or a personal enemy the police have been unable to learn. It was at first believed that he had no money, but it has since developed that he had about $6, and this is missing. Mrs. Hanlon gave the police meager details of some trouble her husband had some time ago.

Oroville.—Charges of using the United States mail to defraud, growing out of the sale of the Orange subdivision near Tres Vias, were tried in the Federal Court in Portland this week.

BOY SHOT DEAD BY A
U. S. MARINE GUARD

Northport, N. Y.—Misunderstanding an order to halt, given by a United States marine who was on guard duty here, James Ratigan, 12 years old, was shot and instantly killed last Saturday night. He was in an automobile driven by Thomas Hall, another boy about his own age, and wore a Boy Scouts uniform.

NATURALIZATION OF ENEMY
ALIEN TO BE TESTED

New York.—Whether a German can become a naturalized American citizen during war time will be settled by the test case of Jonas Meyer, who was granted his final papers here April 6 by Federal Judge Meyer, with the understanding that the action would be contested by the Government. The question has never been passed upon.

Burlingame.—Thirty new homes have been built in Burlingame since the first of the year, according to a report just compiled by Frank Marshall, superintendent of the Burlingame water system. Burlingame now has 1033 ratepayers.

Davis.—The first city election held since the incorporation of Davis was held April 5, and resulted in the election of J. B. Anderson as Mayor.

GERMAN SHIPS IN
U. S. PORTS SEIZED

Vessels Taken by Government
Include Four at San Francisco and Twenty-Seven at New York

Washington.—Nearly 100 German merchant vessels in American ports were taken over April 6 by the Treasury Department.

It is held that the Government has absolute treaty rights to make use of the ships, though it is uncertain whether they can be taken over without reimbursing the German owners.

In some quarters the position is taken that the ships of a value equal to that of American vessels sunk by German submarines should be confiscated outright, but that it would be best to pay for the others.

The following German owned ships have been taken over by the American authorities:

1215 GERMANS TAKEN
FROM SEIZED SHIPS

New York.—An official statement issued April 6 stated that a total of 1215 German officers and seamen of the seized vessels had been received at Ellis Island during the day.

Commodore Hans Ruser of the Vaterland, as ranking officer of the fleet of German merchantmen, was assigned a special apartment. The other commanders were quartered in small dormitories, while the seamen were lodged in the big assembly rooms used by immigrants.

BRAZILIAN SHIP SUNK;
THREE MEN MISSING

Cherbourg.—The Brazilian steamer Parana, 4461 tons, was sunk April 6. Three members of her crew are missing. The Parana was owned in Rio Janeiro.

Narrow Skirt Is Fashion's Edict

There are some dressmakers who are still holding out that they will not reduce the width of the hems in frocks or suits, but isn't it rather foolish to hold out against a Paris fashion that has been accepted by the American buyers?

Naturally a change in the silhouette of the skirt is a drastic thing. It cannot be lightly regarded by dressmakers, tailors or the public. It is in this garment that fashion takes its most serious somersaults. The wrong cut of a skirt puts one more completely out of the fashion picture than one likes. Even the staid and the philosopher among women cannot successfully stand this test. If a woman cannot buy a new skirt cut according to the new pattern, she will cook up some scheme in the sewing room by which an old skirt can be let out or drawn in.

The voice of the prophet was lifted early in the winter, foretelling the coming of narrow skirts in the early spring, but few listened. The dressmakers shrugged their shoulders, the ready-to-wear manufacturers kept on making skirts with four and five yards voile and several kinds of Chinese pongs under their various names, such as shantung and tussah.

Worth never goes in for an eccentric silhouette, but this season he has thrown in his lot with those who are making narrow skirts. He has produced the peg-top skirt, as we are beginning to call it over here.

The American buyers are doubtful concerning the fullness that is put into the waistline of this skirt to make the barrel effect at the hips; the older American woman does not care for a thick, bulky waistline, so our shops over here are working on the idea of eliminating the plaits which are used now at the waist belt and are thinking out a scheme of substituting yokes and applying the fullness to the lower edge of them.

The High Waistline.

Jenny, Doeillet, Worth and several of their colleagues have introduced the high waistline into afternoon and evening frocks. This is almost as serious a change in the silhouette as the narrowing of the skirt hem. If one is adopted, the other must be, for the low, medieval waistline, which is at the hips, connected with a melon-shaped skirt, is too ugly to think about.

Whenever a skirt has been full below the hips and narrow at the ankles, it has been high-waisted. This waistline has been obtained in many ways; sometimes the material is cut to fit a deep inner belt and corded or bound to its upper edge; again, it is plaited in small groups at sides and back. Today the plaits are more universal than the plain effect.

The high waistline on evening gowns has to do with the incoming of the First Empire and Directoire periods, both of which have been suggested in several of the costumes that have been turned out by the French designers during the last six months. It was expected that some definite move in this direction would be made at the spring openings, but, evidently, the designers have contented themselves with a few touches from the fashions of those two periods and have let it go at that. Large revers, a high, turnover collar at the back, long, tight sleeves that flare over the hand, and the high-waisted skirt beneath the short jacket are features of the Directoire period.

The evening gown with the negligible bodice, the round décolletage and the high waistline, with the skirt that hangs limply against the figure are features taken from the First Empire.

The Round Décolletage.

It is quite evident from the unity shown by the different dressmakers in Paris that they intend to bring in the round décolletage of the First and Second Empires.

Doeillet is one of the designers who indorses the court décolletage, as it used to be known. This displays the top of the shoulders and arms, somewhat after the 1840 method which became so well known through the Empress Eugénie, who never failed to display her famous drooping shoulders.

With these bodices there are ornamental straps that go across the upper part of the shoulder. Few evening gowns have any other kind of décolletage but the round one. The difficult line of the Renaissance is not again attempted.

None of the Paris gowns shows any especial or striking novelty in fabrics, although Rodier has been working hard at the production of silks, serges and soft Chinese fabrics. There is no one thing, however, that stands out vividly from the rest and proclaims itself as a desirable.

QUAINT BONNET AND BAG

A charming "Bluebird" model by Smolin is this mushroom sports shape in gold khaki-kool trimmed with blue chenille embroidered and inserted squares of multi-colored silk curls. The bag matches the hat in color and has a large Chinese tassel. Although the hat is daintily trimmed, not profusely, it is very neat in appearance, and no doubt will be one of milady's favorites during the spring season.

GET RIGHT COLOR WOMAN'S BEST ERA

EASY MATTER TO BRIGHTEN UP A NORTH ROOM.

CHANGE WROUGHT BY INDEPENDENCE AS WAGE EARNER.

Home Art Specialist Suggests Use of Yellow as Probably the Best—Have the Curtains of Some Transparent Material.

Have you a bugbear of a north room that always eludes your attempts to make it livable? Now that winter is here, it might be just the place for the children to use as a playroom, or the older ones for quiet study and reading.

"The problem facing one who furnishes a north room is that of making it light, bright and warm," commented Miss Araminta Holman, instructor in home art in the Kansas State Agricultural college. "Since this room lacks sunshine, yellow is the best color to use. Yellow will cheer and brighten it, and yellow which has a little red to warm it will be better than a 'cold' color. Orange is the warmest color. Browns are tones of orange and better to use than gray, black or blue. One should use browns that have more yellow than red.

"If the room is a 'den,' the furniture may be walnut or oak, but if it is a bedroom, bird's-eye maple or cherry may be used. The curtains should be light, in tones of yellow or orange. The material should be thin and transparent to admit all the light possible.

"Backgrounds should be yellow or orange—warm colors. The woods used should be in harmony with the other furnishings of the room. Dark tones express formality, dignity, repose and seriousness. Light tones express gaiety, youth and informality."

Rice Jambalaya.

One and a half cupsful of rice that has been thoroughly washed, one pound of fresh pork, one pound of sausage, one slice of ham, half a seeded red pepper, one large tomato, one sweet pepper, one large onion, one clove of garlic, three sprigs of parsley, one sprig of thyme, two ground cloves, one crushed bay leaf, one tablespoonful of butter. Cut pork and ham in very small pieces; the sausage in rather large slices. Mince all of the other ingredients. Carefully brown the onion and the pork in butter. When light brown add the ham and the other seasoning and brown together for five minutes. Then add the sausage and cook five minutes longer, stirring constantly. Add three quarts of hot water or clear soup stock. Boil ten minutes, then add the washed rice, after which boil half an hour or until firm. This is the real jambalaya. But the average southern housekeeper does not make such a elaborate dish of it, the jambalaya being a method of utilizing left-overs. It is a favorite way of finishing up ham, veal and beef scraps in combination. Chicken sausage, shrimp and oysters make good jambalaya.

Potatoes Stuffed With Meat.

Take a number of large potatoes, wash and scrub them thoroughly and bake in a very hot oven. As soon as they are tender cut the top from each and scoop a hole in the center. Previous to this take the remains of cold cooked beef, mince finely, season to taste, moisten with gravy and heat. Place a spoonful of meat in each potato. Replace the tops of the potatoes and bake until a brown color. The scooped-out potato may be either mashed smoothly with butter and milk or made into rolls by mashing the potato and adding a little butter, salt and flour. Mix to a paste with a well-beaten egg, form into rolls and bake in the oven.

Graham Pudding.

One cupful of sweet milk, one egg, pinch of salt, one-half cupful sugar, one-half cupful molasses, one level spoonful soda (dissolved), two round cupfuls of graham flour, one cupful of currants or raisins floured. Mix in order given, steam three hours. Eat hot with lemon or vinegar sauce. Lemon Sauce—One tablespoonful cornstarch, mixed with two tablespoonfuls of water; stir into one cupful of boiling water, boil till clear, add one cupful of water, one egg, grated rind and juice of one lemon. Beat together, stir rapidly and remove from stove as soon as it begins to simmer.

Pumpkin Pie.

This is an old-fashioned recipe: Cut the pumpkin into large pieces, keeping the skin on, and put it on to boil. When soft, scoop out the pulp, sift it and for every heaping teaspoonful of pumpkin add one pint of rich milk, two eggs, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-half tablespoonful of ginger and the same of salt. Make a good, short pastry, fill with the mixture and just before putting into the oven put a few small pieces of butter over the top and grate over them a little nutmeg.

Fruit Dumplings.

Use any kind of sauce, apple, berry or pear, etc. Make very sweet. Mix one cupful of flour, one tablespoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, with water (never milk) enough for stiff batter. Drop in sauce, cover tightly and boil 15 or 20 minutes.

Wire Rods.

Often in a country bungalow or up in the attic loft we desire to put up curtains, but do not care to spend any extra money for curtain rods. Strings will sag after a time, but an excellent substitute for a rod is a wire stretched tight.

She Always Worked, but Until Recently the Money All Went Into Father's Pocket as His Legal Right.

It was just a little piece of newspaper poetry published on the editorial page. Doubtless many thousands read it, for it was well phrased. Probably most of the men who read it were pleased, for it was an appeal to men's chivalry and protection, a confession of feminine weakness and self-insufficiency.

The burden of the poem was a faint wail that women were forced to leave the home where it was alleged they all wanted to stay, and to become wage earners. Men were appealed to to treat the unhappy creatures kindly and make up to them by politeness what they had lost when they ceased to be domestic workers.

It is a little hard on those brave pioneer women who made it possible for the girl of today to get a job, who forced open the colleges that women might educate themselves for business and the professions, to be thanked in terms like these.

Surely they never expected that when the time came when women would have their choice, at good pay, of the work they should do, that they would sigh over the necessity of working.

The trouble with the business girl who thinks she would be better off at home embroidering dollies, is that she does not know that work has always been the portion of women. Long before there was a factory or a typewriter or a power-driven machine women worked for wages. They had to. The workingman never supported his family. He was never able to support them.

The difference between then and now is that in the old days women did not collect their own wages. The money went into father's pocket. He had a legal right to the services of his wife and children, and thought he had also a moral right to whatever they earned. There has never been a time in history when women were as happily situated as now. And the change has been wrought chiefly by the fact that women are increasingly becoming independent wage earners. They are in a position now to marry whom they please, whether the man has money or not. They can grow and develop to the very limit of their capacity. They are as free as women have never before been free.

The woman who finds the business world uncongenial is free to go into domestic service, unless she is too much of a snob. But the chances of living a parasitic life of sentimental idleness are as slim now as in the earliest Victorian times.

Birthday of Byron.

Recently occurred the one hundred and twenty-ninth anniversary of the birth of Lord Byron. The poet's family, on the paternal side, traced its origin back to the time of William the Conqueror, and on his mother's side he was related to the royal family of Scotland. His father, Capt. John Byron of the Guards, was so notorious for his gallantries and recklessness that he received the nickname of "Mad Jack." After squandering the inheritance of his wife, "Mad Jack" deserted her, and died a few years after the birth of George Gordon Noel, who early became Lord Byron through the death without issue of his grandfather, the fifth Lord Byron. He contributed some notable works to literature and introduced a style of romantic poetry that was to set the fashion for many a day.

Bobby Was "Fixed" for the Job.

Jimmy had seen a steeple climber in action, and upon reaching home he immediately tried to imitate the feats he had seen. Picking out a large tree, he began to climb up its rough trunk, but ere he had gone his height his small hands loosened their hold upon the scaly bark and he came to earth amid a shower of brilliant stars. Manfully controlling his ready tears, he walked thoughtfully toward the house, conscious of a rapidly growing bump immediately under his cap. As he entered and passed the pantry door he spied his smaller brother busily engaged in transferring the contents of a jam jar into his tiny stomach. As Jimmy surveyed his besmeared and sticky little brother he smiled through his tears and said: "Gee, whiz! Bet you cud a held onter that tree, Bobby!"

So Don't Mix Play With Work.

Injury to an employee by falling down steps down which he was carrying a load in the course of his employment, because of the act of a passing employee in thrusting a newspaper against his ribs for the purpose of tickling him, is held not to arise out of his employment within the meaning of the workmen's compensation act, in the California case of Coronado Beach company vs. Pillsbury.—Case and Comment.

Filling a Want.

"Do you know that fortunes are made by selling soft drinks at baseball parks?" "I'm not surprised. The fans appreciate and encourage a business like that. For a nominal sum they not only get a refreshing drink, but the empty bottle serves as an ideal missile to throw at the umpire."

WHAT AVERAGE GIRL DOES NOT KNOW

By LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

"Experience joined with common sense To mortals is a providence."

In how many households do young wives know how to combat the high cost of living, yet keep the family nurtured properly? In every large city, town and village it is said that girls leave the public schools around the age of fourteen and fifteen. The great majority must after that earn their own living. Immediately they go into stores, shops or factories. In a very few years they marry and start housekeeping with little or no knowledge of how to buy food in small quantity, how to care for it, or how to prepare it.

Such young women have no knowledge of the value of certain foods from the nutritive standpoint. The result is a great waste in every direction.

If a girl has not been brought up to cook, for the sake of the man she is to marry she should take a course of study in it before he is called upon to pay the bills for her ruthless waste.

The recipes in some cookbooks are often extravagant, intended for a large number of persons. More can be learned from an old-fashioned housewife who has had to count her pennies to eke out sufficient to set on her table. Her motherly heart warns to the girl about to marry, knowing nothing of the cost of housekeeping.

A young husband might eat sugar-kisses and drink poor coffee for breakfast, declaring them delicious when his bride's hands prepared them; but a severe case of indigestion would be the result. Every human being needs certain nourishing foods that will build up the system and keep up strength.

A diet of baker's rolls only will not make up for the hearty satisfaction that used to attend the thick slice of toasted whole wheat bread such as mother used to make, soft poached eggs done to a turn, good strong coffee tempered with rich hot milk half-and-half and a generous addition of a dash of good thick cream. This, together with a saucer of breakfast food similarly treated, is a breakfast fit for a king.

A man may have costlier breakfasts, but he could not enjoy them more. For his luncheons when he is out of her sight a woman cannot be accountable. If he has a sweet tooth and indulges in pie, pickles or pastries (disgrunting the inner man), she is not to blame. A good hot supper will counterbalance his indiscretion.

The old-fashioned housewife tells a bride she should have changes in food, always with an eye to their nutritive value. She should try to do her own marketing, never forgetting that a "penny saved is a penny earned." All of these things are what every girl should know about.

OPPOSITION

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

There is no force quite so effective as Opposition. When everything runs along smoothly and with no Opposition we lose the correctness of our vision, become careless and get off edge.

Win on your mettle. Opposition keeps you constantly on the alert, arouses every ounce of fight in you and makes you think and plan your hardest and act beyond your normal powers.

Win on your mettle. No one knows his own Possibilities of Efficiency and Achievement until the odds against him become desperate and he stands up and faces them and—Fights.

Win on your mettle. You have within yourself certain abilities undreamed of by you that need but the stimulating force of Opposition to bring them out. Opposition, dodged, becomes a terrible monster—faced, it takes to its heels. Win on your mettle.

The Road o' Dreams.

Out on the edge of the work-a-day sphere, Far out from the course of time, Where the silvered light of the moon shines clear.

The vesper call-bells chime, Always, it seems, Luring with schemes, You to the road o' dreams.

And wild and free are thoughts that arise In breasts of pilgrims there— And bold is the message flashed from the skies: "A wreath for those who dare."

Only what seems Sheds golden gleams Out on the road o' dreams. A poor, poor place is the work-a-day land; Few of its sweets are real Compared to joys that are ever at hand When the day dreams o'er you steal.

What is what seems With reality teams, There in the road o' dreams. And so we are prone our faith to renew Daily at eventide, Knowing our souls will be soaring to view Joys our flesh is denied. Ever it gleams— Faith in what seems— Out in the road o' dreams. —Pittsburgh Post.

Why One Can See Better in Moderate Than Bright Light.

An observant chauffeur, passing an automobile with glaring headlights, noted that objects at the side of the road which had been distinctly visible dropped out of sight when the bright lights were thrown upon them. Since one can see better in a little light than in no light, he wondered, why can one not see better in bright light than in moderate light?

The answer is, paradoxically, that the less light there is the better one sees, for the brighter the object the less efficient is the eyesight. If, after we have been in darkness, we suddenly turn on a bright light and look at our eyes in the mirror, we can see the pupil of the eye rapidly growing smaller. If we reduce the light the pupil dilates again. What happens is the same as in the camera when we adjust the shutter to the intensity of the light.

The colored iris of the eye corresponds to the shutter. It consists chiefly of a muscle which, as the light increases, is stimulated to contract, thus drawing the curtain and shutting out some of the superfluous light. It usually takes a few seconds for this adjustment to take place. Thus when we emerge from darkness into light we are blinded until the iris can shut out some of the light from the eyes.

SOME SMILES

Temporary Attraction.

"Do you find your new neighbors interesting?" "To be frank with you, I do not," replied Mr. Dubwaite, "and I'm sure Mrs. Dubwaite will cease to find them interesting as soon as she satisfies herself whether the fur coat of the woman next door is genuine seal, or merely imitation."

Another Matter.

"Can you use the little poem I left with you the other day?" asked the poet. "I could use it," replied the editor, "but I'm naturally kind-hearted and I don't want to hurt your feelings." "But it wouldn't hurt my feelings in the least to have the poem published." "You don't understand me. I meant that I could use it to light my pipe."

Expressing His Sentiments.

"Are you interested in electrical science?" "Not particularly," answered the grouchy old bachelor at a newsstand. "I merely bought this magazine because it is the only one of 30 or 40 for sale here without a stammering girl on the cover."

August Assembly.

"I used to think congress was the most impressive deliberative body in the world," said the traveled man. "What caused you to change your opinion?" "I looked in on a suffrage convention. The hall seemed to be full of female George Washingtons, Thomas Jeffersons and Abraham Lincolns."

John Barleycorn, Exit.

"So you wish to see the sights of the city?" "I would be delighted to have you show me around," answered the visitor. "First, I will take you to the city's most famous drain." "I don't understand." "Since prohibition has been in force here, it is estimated that several hundred thousand dollars' worth of liquor has been poured into the sewer through that particular drain."

Giving Him a Rest.

"Doctor, I go to pieces on the slightest provocation. I'm all unstrung." "I see. What you need is something to quiet your nerves—I might say enforced idleness in the open air. What sort of outdoor sport would excite you least?" "Well, I don't care much about fishing." "You wouldn't be vexed or impatient if you sat all day without getting a single bite?" "I don't think it would worry me at all."

Controlled Her Affections.

"Yes, Betty is going to marry for love." "How foolish." "Not at all. You see, she had sense enough to fall in love with a rich man."

To Know Good Linen.

There are many persons who do not know how to distinguish between the two qualities of linens. A microscopic examination of the two qualities shows that the needle cutting through the chemically bleached linen leaves broken and ragged threads. A puncture of the needle in the grass bleached linen shows that the needle simply separates the threads by passing between them. In one case the threads are bent, and in the other the threads are broken. The fibers of the chemically bleached linens are uneven, brittle and inferior; the fibers of the grass bleached linens are practically unimpaired, so that when the needle is withdrawn and the cloth rubbed and pulled the threads of the latter resume their former position, and the cloth will be as good as ever.

Johnson is originality plus. He has the largest and choicest assortment of "bullseye hitter" anecdotes ever shot from the platform by any one man. This play on the humorous, however, is only the tabasco sauce to the meat of his thought.

What an Oklahoma Boy Did With an Acre of Land

The production of 100 bushels of corn on an acre of land is by no means common in any state, and especially in Oklahoma, where climatic conditions are none too reliable, writes a correspondent of the Country Gentleman. This feat was accomplished during the past year, however, by Earl Ross, a farmer boy of Oklahoma county, Okla.

Earl's father, a renter, gave him an acre of land on what little creek bottom there was on the farm, and the boy went to work. The land had been in potatoes the year before and weeds had overgrown it to some extent.

In the early spring the land was plowed about eight inches deep, and then the disk harrow and the smoothing harrow were run over the plot three times before the crop was planted. The stand was pretty good and cultivation began immediately, even before the corn came up. In addition to being harrowed twice, the corn was cultivated five times. In fact, the county agent said Earl almost lived in that corn patch up to the time the crop was laid by.

But the work paid, for the yield was slightly more than 100 bushels to the acre. Along with that 100 bushel corn yield came other benefits. There is a father who sees more value in what he used to term "book farming," and there is a wide awake boy who sees more in the future of farming than he was ever able to see before.

ONE OF THESE DAYS.

Say, let's forget it, let's put it aside.
Life is so short and the world is so wide.
Days are so short and there's so much to do;
What if it was false—there's so much that's true.
Say, let's forget it, let's brush it away.
Now and forever, so, what do you say?
All of the bitter words said shall be praise
One of these days.
Say, let's forget it, let's wipe off the slate.
Find something better to cherish than hate;
There's so much good in the world that we've had
Let's strike a balance and cross off the bad;
Say, let's forgive it, whatever it be;
Let's not be slaves when we ought to be free;
We shall be walking in sunshiny ways
One of these days.

HOW TO MAKE BATH BUNS.

As Well as a Recipe For Sweet Milk
Rolls That Excel.

To make bath buns take one pound of dry, sifted flour, one cake of compressed yeast, half a cupful of lukewarm milk, half a cupful of sugar, three-quarters of a cupful of softened butter, a pinch of salt, grating of lemon rind, four eggs. Soften the yeast in the liquid and stir it into the flour to make a sponge. Add the other ingredients, knead for half an hour, add more flour if required, but keep the dough soft.

When risen to double its bulk in a covered pan in a warm place shape into balls, brush over with sugar dissolved in milk and bake for about twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Brush over again and sprinkle with crushed lump sugar. Stand in the oven again until well glazed.

Here, too, is a recipe for sweet milk rolls: Take half a pound of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt, one ounce of butter, a teacupful of cold milk. Sift flour and baking powder and salt together. Rub in the butter with floured fingers, mix with the milk, add a dessertspoonful of sugar, make into rolls, bake at once. Brush over with milk when half baked and then finish.

Warding Off Potato Diseases.

Experiments conducted in Minnesota for the control of potato diseases during 1914 and 1915 show that the average yield of potatoes per acre increased fifty-six bushels in sixteen fields under experiment by careful selection and disinfection of seed. Spraying experiments for seven years gave an average annual increase of sixty-three bushels per acre of early potatoes sprayed three times with bordeaux mixture or of late potatoes sprayed four times.

this season. Miss Hays possesses an unusual range of three octaves, and the astonishing ease with which she does the coloratura roles is equaled only by the warmth, smoothness and strength of her voice in sustained passages. She especially excels as a band soloist, the volume and power of her tones rising easily above the heavy brass accompaniment.

Why Not Try This?

Everything that people admire and covet so much, for the sake of getting which they worry and hustle so much, all this does not bring them a whit of happiness. So long as they are hustling they think their reward will be in that which they are striving for. But no sooner do they obtain the object of their desire than they commence to fuss and worry and envy things they have not got yet. And this stands to reason, for not by satisfying one's vain desires is independence achieved, but, on the contrary, through ridding oneself of such desires.

If you wish to ascertain the truth of this try to apply, say, one-half of the effort that you have been hitherto wasting on gratifying your desires to freeing yourself of them, and you will soon perceive yourself that in this way you will derive far more peace and happiness.—Epictetus.

Your Friend.

Before you take offense at a friend be sure you have reason to be offended. If it seems as if your friend has slighted you be sure you have done nothing to make him act that way. Friends or even acquaintances do not generally start out with the deliberate intention of causing a quarrel. Remember that. Give your friend the benefit of the doubt, for a friend kept is better than money in the bank. Be economical with your friends. Don't waste them.—American Boy.

Save the Alfalfa Leaves.

"Two-thirds of the feeding value of the alfalfa plant is the leaves," says a writer in the Farm and Fireside. "If the leaves are lost in curing only one-third of the feeding value remains. This makes it important that alfalfa hay be cured so as to save the leaves. This means that the alfalfa must be raked into windrows before the leaves dry or they will fall off. The alfalfa should be raked into windrows an hour or two after being cut. This not only saves the leaves, but also keeps the alfalfa green, and more of the flavor retained."

Starting With Sheep.

An important feature in starting the sheep business is to quickly work into a flock of around a hundred ewes or, as is recommended by the University of Illinois, a ewe for each two acres of the farm. The small flock which has heretofore been recommended for using weeds and waste feed and incidentally as a small source of profit is the flock that often is diseased and because of its insignificance in the farm business is certain to be neglected.
